Insurance Market Insights

WHY PARTNERING WITH A BROKER MATTERS IN TODAY'S MARKET

In 2024, market rate increases averaged between 14% and 25%. The hard market is causing increased tightening in underwriting, coverage changes, and non-renewals. Capacity, inflation, and cost of re-insurance are primary attributes to the current appetite and subsequent rate.

Working with a broker that not only understands market trends, but takes a proactive approach results in a more stable insurance program.

Managing Cost

RISK FINANCING CONTINUUM

Risk financing can be viewed as a continuum between total risk transfer and total risk retention. Much like an investment portfolio, moving through the continuum creates opportunity to find the appropriate balance. In this case the balance of risk retention, risk transfer, program control, and savings potential. CCIG works with our clients to determine the risk financing method best suited for their organizations risk management profile, risk appetite and risk-taking philosophy.

Risk transfer offers maximum cost certainty, but sacrifices both cost efficiency and program control.

In the middle of the continuum is a combination of the two, striking a balance between risk retention and transfer, as well as cost efficiency, certainty and program control.

Risk retention provides the lowest cost certainty but greater cost efficiency and program control.

"Shifting to CCIG has underscored the potential of working with a boutique insurance team. Many of CCIG's team members came from big brokers because they wanted to deliver a better, more personalized client experience, and that's exactly what I've seen. The Principles of Safety Consulting

90%

Of work-related accidents are the result of unsafe behaviors and all at-fault motor vehicle accidents result from unsafe driving behavior.

Control

Workers' Compensation claims and at-fault motor vehicle accidents are the most controllable lines of insurance for organizations committed to managing risk.

Reduce

The most effective ways to reduce the total cost of risk are to develop and implement programs designed to prevent loss, and to implement programs that will mitigate the cost of losses that occur.

Clearly defined responsibility and accountability for safety at each level of the organization must be established, communicated, and reinforced to build and maintain a strong culture of safety.
